

Werkbundsiedlung Wiesenfeld

designing the distance "islandplan" & "compact small units"

Space inbetween buildings open towards many directions giving good view and orientation, which also create safety in public space.

Inhabitants of low-rise dwellings with good access to private gardens on both ground and rooftop gardens.

Streets are treated as one part of the "public field" that extends generously between buildings.

Upper floors of high-rises with double skin façades open towards the exterior, keeping a generous distance between each other.